HUNGKONG, WEDNESDAY, JULY 13, 1887

One point in the remarks recently made by the Surveyor General at the Council

I desire to call attention to one fact, and I am sure my hon, friend opposite (Hon. A. many years past it has been the practice of n width, and therefore really the difference in the widths we see in the backyards of more modern buildings and the width prewill bear this in mind they will see at once. purchase of those fever dens which are a direct menace to the health of the community generally. I therefore think this question of backyards, which after all appears to form the principal obstacle to the passing of this Bill, may be met:, 2

We are not so sanguina as Mr Price is that Mr A. P. MacEwen for any one else) will bear him out in the above statement. It is just possible, that the Surveyor General's zeal may have led him, in this instance, as it has done before, into a one-sided style of putting things. It believes us all to be careful of what are called 'facts,' more especially If a salisfactory modus vivendi is to be discovered. A direct statement is here made by Mr Price that of late years pr perty-owners have, of their own initia- the Ministry have resigned. tive, put backyards of from five to seven feet in width into their houses. Therefore the exaggerated estimates as to compensation, he says, would be enormously reduced. Now propertyholders, on the other hand, assert that for some years back they have been compelled by the Surveyor General, at great loss to themselves, to leave these spaces; and that the Public Works Department has frequently refused to sanction plans until these spaces were left. Further, that the concessionto erect versudahs overhanging Crown land was refused until the property-owners agreed to the backyards referred to. Of course there may be a misunderstanding somewhere; but if the property-holders have not made an egregious mistake-and we can scarcely think they could have done so these - Wednesday, the 13th July, at 4 p.m., backyards can burdly be said to owe their existence to the house-owners' own initiative. Here, then, we have what looks very like either a misunderstanding or a misrepresentation; and there can be no harm in reminding the able Head of the Public Works Department that no cause was ever advanced, not oven the cause in favour of backyards.' by making statements that will-not bear investigation. It would be well if Mr Price would quote cases where backyards were produced from the owner's flown initiative. A general belief prevails that many shaky 'facts' and figures were given, and not a few erroneous inferences made during the sittings of the Sanitary Board, when the Public Healt Bill was being discussed. Owing to the fact that the representatives of the press were excluded from these meetings, we were unable to check figures or correct the Sanitary Board deliberations, then the public will linve strong grounds for believing that there is something wrong, something to hide. The more we see this discussion on the Public Health Bill, the more we are convinced of the absolute necessity for the utmost publicity being given to the proceedings of the Sanitary Board.

The Draft Bill, as amended in accord- ident ance with the promised concessions of the Government, has not yet been Goods per Steamer Melbourne unclaffued published; but one or, two comments may be made upon the modifications Claims against the Japan must be mide sketched out by the Attorney General. Of course, the particular sections relating | p.m., and may be expected here on or about after to backyards, privies, and windows have been struck out; but a closer examination of the sections which remain will show that the Bill has not yet been relieved of all the powers bearing on these subjects. The Attorney General asks the public to trust the Board, and not to Lie down these good men too stringently; but somehow or other the community have got to a certain state of mind-Mr Price calls it the effervescent stage-which can be best described as the sceptical stage, and they are no at all in a mood to take anything for granted. The power of the Board to make Bye-Laws has very properly been hedged found by the provision that these Bye-Laws must be sanctioned by the that the relatives of the deceased passenegislative Council: A glance, however. at the Sections 20, 21, 22, and 23 will show that, apart from the check on the Bye-Laws provided by the Legislative whatever of any kind was sought to be cast Council, the Board will possess powers upon the new steamer Falshan (Captain which, if fully exercised, must nullify Goggin) for the unfortunate occurrence. tand render of no effect the modifications and concessions promised by the Government. Such the number of members being 31 ladies and thing would never be premeditated 32 gentlemen, and the attendance at pracwe know; but legislation must be considered in view of its possible consequences. Another important point is this, -that the right of appeal is not given in all cases in which power is C. F. A. Sangster for his valuable services given to abate a nuisance. If the Magistrates are to hold the power of declaring what constitutes a noisance, it would be a much more simple plan than that now adopted, to provide for ensuing season :- Vice-President, Major meeting deserves attention. CONTRIBUTED.

The title to the Bill is 'An Ordinance for amending the laws relating to Public Health in the Colony of Hongkong,' but the preamble of the Bill merely recites that it is expedient to make provision for proserving and promoting the public health in this Colony, and says nothing about amendment of the existing laws.

The title to the Bill is therefore inconsistent with the preamble, and both title and preamble, as will be seen presently, are inapplicable to the Bill as it stands. By Ordinance 12 of 1856, secs. 12 and 13, all the laws in force in England for the time being relating to Nuisances are extended to this Colony, together with all remedies compatible therewith for the prevention, abatement, punishment of, or the compensation for, Nuisances which are or shall be at any time in force, within England. And, as if more clearly to express the opinion of the legislators of the Colony in 1856, that the wisdom which guided the Home legislators in framing laws for abating nuisances and promoting the public health was of the highest order, and that nothing better could be devised locally at any time, they enacted by this Ordinance that these remedies other Ordinance against nuisances then inforce for hereafter to come into force unless

SUPREME COURT. IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION ---Preisne Judge,Wednesday, July 13.

This was an action arising out of the the defendant in this case. The goods were claimed by Mr J. C. Morrison, clerk, residing at the Glass Works, who applied to have them returned to him-Mr Caldwell, of Mesers Caldwell and Wilkinson, appeared for the plaintiff, and

Mr. Dennys said he appeared for Mr Morris son, who, as he claimed the effects, was now the defendant. His Lordship held that the onus of proce lay on Mr. Dennys.

Mr Dennys maintained that the seizure was illegal from the beginning. - The goods that were seized under the writ of execution were in his client's house and in his client's possession and were not in the possession of the defendant at all, and the proper way te attach them would have been by order. The applicant did not claim the ricksha. which was not seized in his-house. Jackson, the defendant in the original suit. was living in the beginning of May in the Victoria Hotel. About the middle of the month he came to live with Mr Morrison and remained with him till he left Hongkong. There were three altogether in the mess. Mr Morrison, another gentleman and Mr. Jackson. The two last paid no rent. They simply paid their share of the mess expenses. the servants' wages and the expense for wine. Mr Morrison both in April and May advanced various sums to Mr Jackson, for which the latter gave I. O. Us. On the 31st May his client asked Mr Jackson to pay what he was indebted to him; amounting in all to about $100. Mr Jackson said he had no money to pay. He had had heavy losses in the share market or in various ways. He then said Take these things belonging to me in payment of the amount due! Mr Morrison could not get anything else, so he took them. They were taken out of Mr Jackson's bedroom and put in Mr Morrison's room and they had remained were in the possession of Mr Jackson imdrew attention to the fact that while Mr Morrison was lending money to Mr Jackson, he himself was being sued for pretty large sums. It was a very strange thing that Mr Morrison when Jackson was al ready indebted to him, should have taken him to lodge with him and allow him to incur further debts. He maintained the boy's' evidence and the whole circumstan. ces of the case showed that the goods seized actually belonged to Jackson. -Their value. he was told, was considerably more than $20 or $30, more like $:0 or $80; but i was the principle of the thing for which he
